[Special to THE HERALD-Examiner Dispatch.] New York, Feb. 20 .- A young college boy of twenty-four is the cause of a row between Lillian Russell and Attalle Claire. The young man is Alfred Kayne, and he belongs to Columbia college. According to the story, Mr. Kayne is very fond of Lillian Russell. They are said to have been very good friends at one time, and

He was AN ATTACK UPON MISS BUSSELL'S POPULARITY by the presentation of flowers to her rival. It was noticed that during the run of "Le Cigale" in this city Miss Claire began to receive many flowers. Of course, Lillian In his argument after members of the committee had badgered him and worried him nearly to death, Mr. Allen said that the statement had been made before the Senate committee that his office yielded on him $10,000 a year. He asserted that during the year he had held it, it had netted ling the year he had held it, it had netted ling the year he had held it, it had netted ling the year he had held it. He added that it was well enough for the Liberal party, who had hold of the rope, the noose of which was around the prisoner's neek, attempted to climb a telegraph pole. He was unceremoniquely dragged to the ground. "Burn him, burn Miss Hussell received two lonesome bou-quets. Mr. Kayne had a terrible revenge. He heard about it of course, and it is said he was filled with delight, but the young man was not satisfied. He resolved to make snother display on the night that the run of "La Cigale" came to an end, but a happier dea strack him. He would wait until the company opened last Monday night in Beston. The young man ordered a chariot of flowers. It was five feet long and the pole was six feet long. He had
